<https://www.rockeramagazine.com/a-forever-kind-of-love-by-robbie-vee/>

It’s really a marvellous journey Robby will take you over there back in the 50s and ‘60s. First, you should know that he learned from, and shared credits and stages with the best, from James Burton to Carl Perkins, Bo Diddley, Albert Lee, Little Richard, the Everly Brothers, Sir Paul McCartney, Eric Clapton, Dion, The Righteous Brothers, Buddy Holly’s Crickets, Dick Clark and his ‘Caravan of Stars Rock ‘N’ Roll Show’, his father, 60’s pop-rocker Bobby Vee and many more. ‘A Forever Kind of Love’ is one of the most smoothy songs that you will listen to recently. There’s no doubt that his voice was one of the main factors to like this tune, but also, I loved the vintage guitar tone which provided a warm tone for the whole track. I won’t forget the strings that added to the song arrangement in which was a great addition indeed. Now, it’s the time to feel the beauty below and take you on a journey with time, 5 decades ago! Enjoy!

Robby Vee is right back on the saddle with new hit tracks. The voice of many hit tracks is at it one more time for a new scorcher. His tracks fuse spectral country production with smooth vocals and brass celebrations, reflective and warm with emotions. Filled with the kind of romantic knowledge that will have you head over heels, his new song “A Forever Kind of Love” is all you need to hear. The singer-songwriter, Robby Vee, has been releasing his sound while building up a following in the indie country scenes. His melodies are sweet and simple, using a synth or an acoustic guitar in the mix to invite the listener in. The latest single, “A Forever Kind of Love,” is one of the more honest songs for the artist. It blends in unique instrumentation, as Robby Vee harmonizes and layers guitars. Even without the woodwind and twang, it’s a perfect example of Robby Vee’s ability to create a new environment without overwhelming the great idea at its core.

Robby Vee returns with two new hit tracks.

“Good Morning” is pushing cool, moody punches of fuzzy guitar and stalking, galloping rhythms, along with blaring vocals. It boasts a somewhat slow and spacey pop tune awash in ambient synths.

Follow Robby Vee on his website and Youtube.

“A Forever Kind of Love” sets the sensual scene while the direct lyrics are almost cheeky in their charming simplicity. The track sits at a transforming intersection of a woozy stumbler into a spastic and propulsive smooth rhythm. Teeming with enthusiasm as Robby Vee’s vocals scamper wildly over raw performance.

New Music – Robby Vee ‘Good Morning’ Yack Magazine

Words by Matt Miles

<https://yackmagazine.com/?s=robbie+vee>

It can be very difficult and humbling to follow in the footsteps of a famous father. Robby Vee has carved out an incredibly impressive career carrying on in the honest and thoughtful rock and roll stylings of Bobby Vee. It’s a discography that only serves to improve and further the legacy of the Vee family.

‘Good Morning’ begins with the tuneful twang that Robby Vee has become famous for. The guitar sings and throughout the track it provides a beautiful and emotive core that works wonderfully pumping blood at the heart of the song.

The guitar is joined by the soulful crooning of Robby Vee and his crisp warm vocals. The song is one of hope and positivity and this is expertly matched in the inflections and careful placement of each melody.

The lyrics themselves are honest, open, and easily understood.

Like all good country it speaks straight from the heart and doesn't spend too much time or energy hiding behind metaphor or simile, instead it lays out its message in language we can all understand, feel, and relate to.

It's a song that looks to provide a friendly smile and a cosy shoulder to relax into. While retaining a sense of realism it admits that life can be hard sometimes, but instead of dwelling in it, it encourages the listener to step into the brighter feelings.

The instrumentation is much more complex and layered than just the beautiful guitar work of Robby Vee himself. There are whirlwind flourishes of fiddles, sumptuous bass lines, and energetic drums. Robby Vee music on record is a thing of beauty, with gorgeous production and an amazing sound, but you can always hear the full live band and stage show lurking underneath. This is an amazing musician who is famous for absolutely bringing the house down live. Robby Vee is a wickedly talented song writer but it's the stage where he truly calls home. We're very much looking forward to the next tour of Robby Vee and His Rock'n'Roll Caravan.

Exclusive Interview With Robby Vee

Nuevoculture

21 Sep 2021

<https://www.nuevoculture.com/exclusive-interview-with-robb-vee/>

Congratulations on releasing two hit tracks “Good Morning” and “A Forever Kind of Love.”

Q: Please tell us more about the message you wanted to convey with these two tracks?

A: I wanted to record two songs that were positive and hopeful from a life or relationship perspective...

“Good Morning” is a song that speaks to the positive and in some ways it could be an anthem for mental health; “How are things inside you, will this day rule or guide you?” “Do you wake up with the feeling of all that life’s been dealing.” It also pays homage to the legendary June Carter from the Carter Family who was country music's original great lyrical optimist.

"A Forever Kind of Love" is a song written by Gerry Goffin & Jack Keller who also wrote hit songs for my Father Bobby Vee including a #2 Hit "Run To Him" (my personal favorite). Over the years people have asked me if I would consider covering one of my Father's releases, which I've wanted to do...it just took me some time to find the one that fit my journey and had meaning for me. This song was originally recorded by my Father in the early 60's at Abbey Road Studios in London and it charted in the UK & Australia, but was never originally released in the United State because the producer "Snuffy Garrett" had an issue with it. We would get requests for the song when on tour in the UK & Australia and always looked at it like a missed opportunity that his original version was never released in the US. With that in mind, I love the true blue message of the song. It feels like a timeless song to me. I was excited to introduce a great song to my audience as well as his audience that may have never heard it before.

Q: How did your sound develop to become the Robby Vee we know today?

A: I started out as a fan of my Father's record collection, the Vinyl LP and 45's.... Which put me in the universe of Rock n Roll and Rockabilly. As a kid I would spend entire Summers on the road with my Father watching those very same Legendary artist from those Vinyl records perform. Months at a time hanging backstage in the wings on Dick Clark's Rock n Roll Shows seeing greats like Bo Diddley or Little Richard do their thing. I learned a deep love for rock n roll that has continued through the years, I love the craft of a good song. My sound comes from Rockabilly in the sense that the term Rockabilly means many genres: country, bop, rhythm and blues etc... all melted together. It means freedom of genre to move around in that melting pot to arrive at a great song, even a pop song. My foundation has always been these building blocks of roots music and the freedom to build on that in the now of today's sound. My aim has always been to stay true to my own style and honor those foundational pieces in a way that feels honest and real to me. To be grounded in the roots while pointing to the future and embracing what feels most natural. In newer artists I seem to be instinctively drawn to music and a sound that reminds me of those legendary artists and early influential years.

Q: How would you best describe your musical style?

A: I've been described as Neo-Rockabilly...with some Roots Rock n Roll. I think I could fit into the category of Singer Songwriter with my more current releases.

Q: What inspires you when creating new tracks?

A: I've been working and recording with the same group of guys most of my career. Jeff Bjork who is the co-producer and Drummer along with Bryan Williams who is Bass on all the songs I put out, are great sounding boards for the material I record. We collectively have a ground up approach building on the rhythm parts. We can start with a demo I bring into the studio and by the time we start adding my parts, the tracks can take on a totally different life and direction. Inspiration in the moment and pushing around everyone's input, to me that's inspiring. It's the one plus one equals three idea... the openness to come up with something totally different then what was originally planned and trusting it.

Q: Who is one artist you would love to work with?

A: I've been lucky to have worked with so many recording artist and song writers over the years, many who are my heroes in music.

I love what Leon Bridges does. He is one of those artist that has a foot in the roots and looks to create something new that is accessible to today's music audience. He makes records with a raw feel first and his songs seem to stand apart from any other artist out there. I love his sound.

Q: Should we expect any new releases to come out soon?

Yes...This time around I've decided to put out two songs at a time using an old school playbook from the days when artists focused on "the song"... the days of vinyl 45's. My plan is to put out a couple singles at a time and then after a handful of releases, package all the tracks into a full record product release.

Q: Name one of your favorite tracks, and why?

A: Of my music, I'm excited about "Good Morning".

It's a melody that has stuck with me most of my life. It was never really meant to be a finished song. My father wrote the first verse and never finished the song.

One of my favorite records from my fathers career was a record titled "A Nothing Like a Sunny Day" from the 70's. "Good Morning" reminds me of that album, they both have a similar introspective writing style. Over the years, my mother who loved the idea of the song would ask me to finish it. I finished the song as a kind of personal tribute to both her and my father.

Children Of 10 Rock And Roll Icons That Followed In Their Father's Footsteps -...

The son of the 60s hit-maker Bobby Vee, Robby was greatly influenced by his father's music and began playing the guitar as a child. By the age of 16, Robby was performing on stage with his famous father. Today, Robby continues to perform at casinos and fairs all over the country. He has been recognized by both the American and Canadian Rockabilly Halls of Fame and has just released his latest single "Blue Moon Blues".

The Legacy of Bobby Vee

A personal look at the singer's life and his close Minnesota ties

I remember listening to '60s pop star Bobby Vee at my Nana's house in Independence, Minn. when I was younger. We'd dance around the living room and sing along to classics like "Take Good Care of My Baby" and "Rubber Ball." Nana would tell me stories about how her cousin, Karen, set her heart on Bobby Vee in high school and ended up marrying him, just like she had always hoped. "She chased him and he caught her," she'd say, laughing at her cousin's laudable persistence and confidence in their future.

I never had the pleasure of meeting Bobby Vee, although I always knew about him and grew up hearing his music. I distinctly remember learning about the onset of his Alzheimer's at a family gathering a few years ago and like the rest of my family, my heart broke for Bobby and the Vellines. My heart was further tugged on Monday, October 24, when I heard from my mom that Bobby Vee's bout with Alzheimer's had ended—surrounded by loved ones, Bobby Vee passed away at a memory care center in Rogers, Minn.

It's beautiful to see the world acknowledge Bobby Vee's success and musical history. Los Angeles Times, The New York Times, Rolling Stone, Star Tribune, and numerous other publications have written about Bobby Vee's passing and musicians and fans all around the world have offered condolences to his family. "He is one of the most genuine, kind, down to earth guys I have ever met," Nana told me last Friday night.

I'm pretty sure it was providence that just five days after Bobby Vee's passing, I was able to see Robby Vee and his Rock & Roll Caravan perform at Billy's Pub in Rockford, Minn. I went with Nana and my aunt; the whole night was a lively celebration of music, family, and old memories. Robert Velline is Bobby Vee's youngest son and is quite popular in the rockabilly music genre (he was inducted into the Rockabilly Hall of Fame, joining his father who was inducted in 2011) and he covers his dad's music, both as a tribute to his father and a celebration of Robby's own musical heritage. For the past year, he has been an artist representative for the Alzheimer's Foundation of America and is donating all the proceeds from his newest album "Blue Moon Blue" to AFA in honor of his father.

Robby came over and talked with us before the show. He gave hugs to Nana and my aunt and we were able to offer our condolences to his family and talk with him about his dad.

“We tried to give my dad the gift of normalcy,” Robby said about how his family dealt with his dad’s diagnosis. “We didn’t want the disease to dictate how he would spend his time. We wanted to have as much family time as possible. My sister Jenny and I would have family Sundays on her farm in Buffalo, Minn., where my dad could spend time with his grandkids. We’d cook dinner, spend time with the horses, and give my dad rides in his ’65 mustang. Those Sundays became like a ritual for us. My dad and I would also listen to old vinyl records together and sing together. I’d often play my records in the car and he recognized them and his eyes would light up. He couldn’t speak but he pointed at me with a knowing smile. He knew they were mine.”

We talked a little bit about Bobby Vee’s love for music and Nana brought up a story she remembered from the last time Karen and Bobby came to Billy’s Pub to see Robby perform. “He couldn’t talk at that point [because of his Alzheimer’s], but oh, you should have seen his face when your band started to play and you started to sing. He was snapping his fingers and swaying along...he lost a lot of things but he never lost the music. He never lost the music.” Bobby Vee will be remembered by many as an extraordinary musician (Bob Dylan called him “the most meaningful person I’ve ever been on stage with”) and a wonderfully kind man who put his family first and worked hard to share his love of music with the world. “The best way to describe my dad’s life is by pulling from some of his own song lyrics,” Robby said. “‘If when your life is over, and you can smile at where you’ve been, you’ve accomplished all that matters in the end.’ Even when my dad couldn’t speak, he could always communicate with us with his smile. He had his smile up until the very end.”
